Was Pancho Villa in Kenna Wednesday?

There is no man in America who holds the record of being dead as many times as Pancho Villa, the Mexican bandit chieftain—but he wont stay dead.

Wednesday afternoon 3 hand cars loaded with Mexicans from the steel gang were trailing behind the east bound local when the Mexican on the rear of the caboose who had charge of the trail hitch was jerked off and run over by one of the hand cars. Another Mexican, probably out of sympathy, fell off of the hand car and rolled down the dump.

Those who viewed the remains pronounced the one dead and the other dying.

Thursday morning the "dead" Mexican took the morning train for the hospital at Clovis, and the "dying" man went back to work.

W. B. JONES & CO.

A few days ago a man applied to us for a loan, who has lived within fifteen miles of Kenna for over a year but has kept his deposit in an eastern town where he formerly lived. We suggested that he float his loan with his Eastern bank, but he said they declined to make the loan because he had moved out of the state. We also declined making the loan because he was a stranger to us so far as his ability and integrity was concerned.

A few days later a stranger came in the bank, introduced himself stating that he was locating near Kenna and WAS going to make this his trading point, and wanted to move his bank account from his former location to this bank, and it was plain to see that he had some business judgement and meant to make the interests of the country his interests by getting acquainted at once and enhancing the value of his own property by patronizing and helping to build up the local institutions; these are the kind of men that are going to make a success because they throw in with their adopted community soul and body, and the HOME BANK, [Not the bank back East] will back them to the very limit, and in any way that is consistent with sound banking business. Come in and give us a trial, we will treat you right if we know how.

The Eggman in Philadelphia.
A young farmer from Clementon, N. J., was selling eggs at the corner of Fourth and South streets when a bartender walked up to him and asked him the price of a dozen eggs. The farmer answered: "Forty cents a dozen," and as there was an extra egg in the dozer he wanted three cents extra, but the bartender wanted it "thrown in with the bargain."
"Well," said the one who sells the liquor, "I will take the egg and treat you to a drink."
"All right," said the farmer. When they came to the tavern he was asked what he would drink, to which he replied:
"Well, I allow drink sherry with an egg in it."
And they say farmers buy gold bricks.—Philadelphia Times.
